One of the first people to speak out against the criminals was Dr. Larry "Doc" Huxman, a local doctor who had treated many of the victims. Doc was outraged by the violence, and he refused to be silenced. He spoke out at town meetings, and he wrote letters to the local newspaper. He even testified before a grand jury.

Doc's courage inspired others to come forward. The town's residents began to organize, and they demanded that the criminals be brought to justice. The pressure from the community eventually forced the authorities to take action. In 1982, Eaton and his gang were arrested. They were convicted of multiple crimes, and they were sentenced to long prison terms.

Doc's story is a powerful example of how one person can make a difference. He stood up to evil, and he helped to bring justice to a small town that had been terrorized for years.
