Chapter 1: The Art of Blog Writing

5 Quick Tips for Writing a Blog Post

-  1 Choose a focused topic

The topic you choose to blog about needs to be focused, so you don't confuse the reader and jump all over the place. Veering away from your topic can make the audience get lost and may push them from what you are actually wanting them to learn.
-  2 Choose a topic you are interested in

You should really pick a topic that you are passionate about, so you actually want to write about it and inform people on the subject. If you are not passionate about the topic, then how do you expect your audience to become interested as well? It should also be something you know a lot about, so you can be credible with your information. Writing will be a breeze when you enjoy what you are talking about and want to share it with others.
-  3 Visuals & short paragraphs

Photos, videos and infographics, as well as short paragraphs that get to the point, will make your blog visually more attractive. When you come across a blog that is just a large block of words with few paragraphs, it's harder to keep the audience's attention. People these days want to be in the know about things, but want to find out in the quickest way possible. Time is a valuable thing, and if at one glance it looks like it will take too long to read, people will skip it.
-  4 Keep up with comments

When you do get an audience, sometimes they have an opinion, question or just something they want to add. Comments are great because it shows someone is paying attention and you have sparked interest. If someone leaves a comment with a question, you should always reply back to let them know you appreciate their interest, and to further inform them on what they are concerned with.
-  5 Share & spread the word!

This is the most important thing to remember when you are finished writing and you've published your post. How do you expect people to read your work if you don't give them a way to access it? Share a direct link to the post on your Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn or any other social networking sites you use.
